The Foundry's History

With roots dating back to 1872, The Foundry was once home to the Kalamazoo Foundry & Machine Company. Formed by Thomas Buckley, a blacksmith by trade, and local machinist Thomas Wilson, Kalamazoo Foundry & Machine Co. was a grey-iron foundry and steel fabrication facility.

Foundries remain vital to industrial development and our way of life today. They produce metal products for engines, railroads, and pipe components and form essential parts for the machines required to make many of the consumer goods we use and love.
